The Yarn Girls' Guide to Simple Knits by Julie Carles and Jordana Jacobs

Calling all knitters! The two authors of this book (owners of a yarn shop in New York city) have picked out thirty of their most popular knitting projects to feature in this book. Featuring easy step-by-step instructions, a glossary, and lots of pictures, this book makes any project a snap.

It's So Hard to Love You by Bill Klatte and Kate Thompson

Do you have someone in your life who you love but is really hard to love? This guidebook helps people gather the tools and information they need to have a successful relationship with someone who's “hard to love” – whether it be a family member with a substance abuse problem, a spouse who has anger issues, or a friend who keeps letting everyone down.

Louder Than Words by Jenny McCarthy

Actress, model Jenny McCarthy talks about what it's like to be the mother of an autistic toddler in this insightful, important book. With practical advice, information about the disease, and step-by-step instructions on the decisions that have to be made, this book will help anyone who is faced with autism.

The Journal of Joyce Carol Oates 1973 – 1982 by Joyce Carol Oates

Critically acclaimed writer Joyce Carol Oates began keeping a journal when she was thirty-four. Its intent was to capture her feelings, processes, and thoughts as she wrote some of her best-known works. She not only reveals interesting tidbits about these titles, but discusses some events in her personal life that influenced her writing and attitude. A must read for any Joyce Carol Oates fan!

Beyond the Mommy Years by Carin Rubenstein

Thirty million members of the baby-boomer generation are mothers facing “empty nest syndrome.” This book contains interviews with over 1,000 women who discuss their lives after their children left home. Social psychologist Carin Rubenstein also offers professional advice on how to get through this stage and continue to have a fulfilling, rich life.
